

Declaration of Disclosure

Florida A&M University College of Law

The application form submitted for admission to Florida A&M University College of Law contained the following questions:

For any period of time, have you ever attended one or more other law schools? Include any law school ever attended, even if you did not receive grades. Include any provisional or conditional program ever attended.

Have you ever been disciplined, warned, placed on academic or disciplinary probation, sanctioned or expelled or accused of an honor code or student conduct code violation, or advised or required to withdraw by any college, university, graduate or professional school?

In your entire life, have you ever been arrested, detained or restrained, taken into custody, or accused formally or informally of the violation of a law or ordinance, other than a traffic violation that resulted in a fine of less than $200?

If you answer "yes", please attach a statement providing detailed information regarding the nature of the offense and its disposition including all relevant material, dates and facts.

(If your records have been expunged pursuant to applicable law, you are not required to answer "yes" to this question. If you are unsure whether you should answer "yes", you are strongly advised to answer "yes" and fully disclose all incidents. By doing so, you can avoid any risk of disciplinary action or revocation of an offer of admission from the College of Law.)

This Disclosure will become part of your permanent student record, and may be disclosed as appropriate to relevant bar authorities. If you have questions regarding how to complete this form, contact the Office of Admissions immediately.
