

Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University College of Law

2016 - 2017 FACT SHEET

Why Attend FAMU College of Law?

Tuition rates for Florida Residents: $7,065.83, full-time and $5,014.41, part-time, per semester; Non-Resident yearly tuition: $34,034.59, full-time and $24,153.58 part-time.

Affordability - Tuition for in-state and out-of-state students at FAMU College of Law remains among the lowest in Florida. Our tuition rate offers a remarkable value, even on a national scale. Our comprehensive financial aid program includes institutional grants and federal loan programs to help eligible students fulfill the financial obligations attendant with a legal education. All admitted students are considered automatically for any institutional scholarships and need only submit a separate scholarship application when specifically requested.

Flexibility - FAMU College of Law applicants may apply to the full-time day program, or part-time evening program, or both programs at the time of application. Complementing our standard curriculum, we offer international legal opportunities that permit our students to expand their scope of knowledge by exploring the law abroad and through other law schools.

Fall 2017 Prospective Students

Applications may be submitted electronically at the Law School Admissions Council website (www.lsac.org). The deadline for application submission is May 31, 2017. There is an application fee of $33.00, which is waived for current FAMU students, alumni and LSAC Fee Waiver recipients. Priority deadline for FAFSA is March 1, 2017, use FAMU code 001480.

Fall 2016 Entering Class Profile

144-148
LSAT 25th - 75th

151
Class Size
958 applications received

2.88-3.32
GPA 25th - 75th

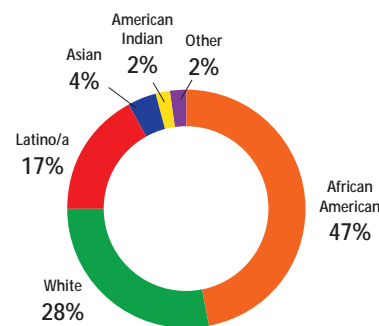

53
Colleges Represented
23 percent with graduate degrees

20-53
Age Range
median age 26

14 States Represented
12 percent non-Florida residents

FAMU College of Law has been consistently recognized for its diversity by U.S. News and World Report, National Jurist magazine, and On Being A Black Lawyer. The College of Law boasts a 2016 Entering Class of 72 percent minority students. We embrace the entire population of students, faculty, and staff who vary in age, gender, race, ethnicity, geographic background, native tongue, religion, physical ability and collegiate experience.

