RE: Application for Dean – Florida A&M University School of Law

Dear Mr. McFeeley, Ms. Parsons, Dr. David H. Jackson, Jr., and the FAMU Law Dean Search Committee,

I am pleased to submit my application for the position of Dean of the College of Law at the Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University. I am enthusiastic about applying and being considered to potentially lead this excellent Law School. My career as a law student, lawyer, and legal academic has been profoundly influenced and motivated by the mission of Historical Black Colleges and Universities. I am a proud graduate of the Howard University School of Law. At the core of my own personal motivation is robust diversification of the legal profession and sharing this motivation with FAMU Law's mission of providing access to the legal profession for minority and particularly African American students is especially exciting to me. I am keenly interested in potentially joining the FAMU Law faculty as Dean as I deeply admire the mission and legacy of inspiring social engineers carried out by the faculty, staff, and students at FAMU Law.

Having worked as a Visiting Professor, Law Professor, Interim Dean, Vice Dean, and Associate Dean over the past nearly seventeen years, I believe I am uniquely qualified to provide visionary leadership at this challenging time in legal education. My previous service at The University of Arkansas at Little Rock William H. Bowen School of Law, Indiana Tech Law School, West Virginia University College of Law, University of Iowa Law School and Temple University Law – Tokyo, amongst others, exemplifies my deep commitment to the ideals and opportunities attendant to a legal education, and I believe that a J.D. degree continues to provide the skill and empowerment to change the law and provide positive influence in the nation and world.

Attached, please find my curriculum vitae detailing my qualifications for the position of Dean. My CV highlights the experience and contributions that portend a successful deanship at FAMU Law. In particular, as Interim Dean at the Indiana Tech Law School, I was given the opportunity to lead the Law School for nearly one year as the Chief Academic and Executive Officer during a turbulent time in its short history. As Interim Dean I was able, with the excellent assistance from some very talented faculty and staff members, to draft our entire accreditation application, host our first official site visit from the ABA site team, recruit two classes of new students, retain our Charter Class, endow three new scholarships at the Law School, serve as a Vice President on the University President's cabinet, and lead our new faculty and staff hiring efforts. This experience, while similar to drinking water from a fire hose, grounded me in the knowledge and skills necessary to lead faculty, staff and students at a law school while working closely with University leadership, fundraise for the benefit of faculty and students, work closely with ABA leadership on accreditation standards, including new and changing rules, and balance the immediate needs of students, staff, and faculty with the long-term goals of a fledgling law school. Our successful provisional accreditation application in 2015 proved our efforts successful.

As Vice Dean, I assisted a new Dean in becoming immediately familiar with the mission, culture, and innovative curriculum as we prepared for hearings in front of both the ABA's Accreditation Committee and the Council on Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar, at which the Dean, University President and I participated. In addition, as Vice Dean we implemented new assessment and feedback policies at the Law School to meet the ABA's new Section 300 provisions requiring formative and summative assessment of curriculum effectiveness. More than anything else, my past experience with founding and successfully bringing a new law school to accreditation allowed me the opportunity to serve in nearly every faculty administrative capacity imaginable. While that turned out to be an extremely heavy lift, I thoroughly enjoyed the learning and new challenges that each opportunity presented to me. I feel confident that I possess the knowledge, skills, abilities and talents to lead a law school as its Dean into the 21st century.

In addition, as Founding Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, I spent two years creating, developing and implementing a state-of-the-art experiential curriculum that I believe is precisely what 21st century law practice demands of graduating law students today. Fundamental to this innovative experiential curriculum was our cross-curricular hypothetical that integrated theory and practice across the curriculum. Our Experiential Legal Writing program required six semesters of real-life drafting of the documents that most law graduates will encounter in their actual practices. Graduates left that curriculum with a portfolio of documents, drafted, graded and re-drafted that served as a foundation of a new law practice. Further as Associate Dean, I served as primary or secondary drafter on all of the Law School's rules and policies, including the academic rules and promotion and tenure policies. We created all of our rules and policies from scratch, after surveying the rules and policies of dozens of law schools seeking the fairest, most transparent rules and policies possible. As described, I labored as one of the primary leaders and drafters on all American Bar Association accreditation documents. Thus, I have gained an intimate familiarity with the ABA's standards for accreditation, including a strong handle on the new assessment, feedback and skills training standards.

The skill set enumerated above seems to me to be an ideal fit for the goals, vision and needs of FAMU Law School. I have long admired FAMU Law's commitment to diversifying the legal profession by offering low-cost tuition to all students, particularly those interested in serving the public interest. My career has been marked by a commitment to increasing the number of students and faculty of color that attend and teach at the institutions that I have served and I would embrace the opportunity to assist in leading these efforts at FAMU Law. Finally, I was fortunate to find success in recruiting new law students at each of the law school's where I have served, even in this very challenging law school applicant market. I would gladly bring these successes to FAMU Law as its next Dean. To wit, in our first three classes of students at Indiana Tech Law, we increased our median LSAT from 146 in our Charter Class to 148 in our second incoming class to 151 in our third incoming class of students. Imperative to recruiting and retaining students includes working closely with and supervising a Law School Admissions team. In addition, finding solutions for successful bar passage is a pressing need at most law schools today. I have assisted in implementing innovative bar study preparation techniques which have led to some excellent successes over the years.

I continue to be very enthusiastic about the opportunities that the challenges facing legal education and law schools currently present. Now is the time to embrace innovation as the legal profession and legal education are shifting under our feet. A leader in 21st century legal education must be ready to recruit students differently, provide legal education more experientially, and provide opportunities to graduates more entrepreneurially. I stand ready and enthusiastic to accept these challenges together and collectively with the impressive faculty at the Florida A&M College of Law.

I look forward to speaking further with the Search Team. If the Committee has specific questions, please feel free to contact me directly either by email or telephone at adpcummings@yahoo.com or 219.670.0856.

Best Regards,
